Beat burnout and reclaim your energy

Burnout sneaks up on you, gradually building amid endless deadlines, constant connectivity and the pressure to always do more. Despite sleeping, you may feel exhausted, disconnected from work or simply like you're running on empty.

Tips for keeping burnout at bay:

- Set boundaries: Protect your personal time as fiercely as your meeting schedule. Silence notifications after hours and say no to non-essential tasks.
- Prioritize rest: Take intentional time-outs. Eat lunch away from your desk, take vacation days and add short pauses into your workday.
- Ask for help: If burnout persists, talk to your manager, colleagues or call your program's toll-free number.
- Reconnect with purpose: Remember what matters. Celebrate small wins and, when you can, focus on tasks that energize you.

Beating burnout is about working sustainably and protecting your energy. Start small, be consistent and remember that you can't pour from an empty cup.

Mind Your Mental Health

May is Mental Health Awareness Month

Mental health challenges touch nearly every family, friendship, neighborhood and workplace, yet silence often surrounds them. This month, we're reminded that healing happens in community. Every conversation chips away at stigma, creates space to seek support and shifts our culture toward greater understanding and compassion.

- Recovery is real: With proper treatment, such as therapy, medication, support groups or a combination, millions of people manage mental health conditions while leading fulfilling lives.
- Your story matters: Speaking openly about our mental health journey normalizes these experiences and shows others that they aren't alone and that asking for help is a sign of strength.
- Connection counts: Small acts create ripples of positive change. Check in on someone, listen without judgment or share resources.

Working on career wellbeing

Feeling healthy, motivated and fulfilled in your work is a vital component of your overall wellbeing.

- Focus on learning and skill development rather than flawless performance.
- Reflect on how your work helps others or furthers a larger mission. A sense of purpose and value fuels motivation and pride.
- Use mindfulness, movement or brief resets during the day to prevent chronic overload.
- Check in with yourself and ask: Am I energized or drained? What needs to change? Adjust workload or priorities accordingly.
